- Seeks high current income, consistent with liquidity and stability of principal
- Invests primarily in high-quality, short-term direct obligations of the U.S. Treasury, such as Treasury bills and notes

- ¹Investments in growth companies can be more sensitive to the company's earnings and more volatile than the stock market in general.
- ²Investments in value companies can continue to be undervalued for long periods of time and be more volatile than the stock market in general.
- ³Investments in small- and mid-capitalization companies present greater risk of loss than investments in large companies, due to greater volatility and less liquidity.
- ⁴International investments are subject to special risks not ordinarily associated with domestic investments, including currency fluctuations, economic and political change and differing accounting standards that may adversely affect portfolio securities. These risks may be heightened in emerging markets.
- ⁵The Fund may invest a portion of its assets in derivatives. Derivative instruments include options, futures and options on futures. A small investment in derivatives could have a potentially large impact on the Fund's performance. The Fund may be unable to terminate or sell a derivatives position. Derivative counterparties may suffer financial difficulties and may not fulfill their contractual obligations.
- ⁶To the extent that the Fund invests a significant portion of its assets in a particular industry, the Fund's performance could depend heavily on the performance of that industry and may be more volatile than less concentrated funds.
- ⁷The portfolio team may choose to invest in initial public offerings (IPOs), the performance of which is unpredictable and the effect of which may not be duplicated during periods in which the Fund does not invest in IPOs.
- ⁸Investing in bonds involves several risks: Interest Rate Risk — the possibility that a Fund's yield will decline due to falling interest rates and the potential for bond prices to fall as interest rates rise. Credit Risk — the financial risk that the issuer will not be able to repay the principal upon maturity as promised. Market Risk — the risk that if a bond is sold before its maturity date, it may be worth more or less than the face value depending on interest rate movements. Inflation Risk — the risk that the value of assets may decline as inflation shrinks the value of a country's currency. Liquidity Risk — the risk that a bond may be difficult to sell in a thin trading market or if it is relatively unknown. Prepayment Risk — the risk that the principal of a fixed income security that is held by the Fund may be prepaid prior to maturity, potentially forcing the Fund to reinvest that money at a lower interest rate. For some investors, income may be subject to state and or local taxes, and certain investors may be subject to the federal Alternative Minimum Tax (AMT).
- ⁹High yield bond investing includes special risks. Investments in lower rated and unrated debt securities are subject to a greater loss of principal and interest than investments in higher rated securities. The values of mortgage-backed securities depend on the credit quality and adequacy of the underlying assets or collateral and may be highly volatile.
- ¹⁰Although U.S. government securities are considered to be among the safest investments, they are not guaranteed against price movements due to changing interest rates, and bond fund prices may decline as interest rates rise.
- ¹¹Obligations issued by other agencies (such as the Federal National Mortgage Association, the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Association and the Federal Home Loan Bank) are backed solely by the ability of the agency to borrow from the U.S.
- ¹²The Fund's focus on investments in securities located in a single state makes the fund susceptible to economic, political and regulatory events that affect that state. This Fund is nondiversified, which means that it may invest in securities of relatively few issuers. As a result, the Fund may be more susceptible than a diversified fund to a single adverse economic or political and regulatory occurrence affecting one or more issuers.
- ¹³Economic or political changes may impact the ability of municipal issuers to repay principal and interest payments on securities of the Fund, which may adversely impact the Fund's shares. Additionally, the Fund may be subject to call risk, which is the risk of a bond being called prior to maturity.
- ¹⁴You could lose money by investing in the Fund. Although the Fund seeks to preserve the value of your investment at $1.00 per share, it cannot guarantee it will do so. An investment in the Fund is not insured or guaranteed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation or any other government agency. The Fund's sponsor has no legal obligation to provide financial support to the Fund, and you should not expect that the sponsor will provide financial support to the Fund at any time. The dividend yield paid by each Fund will vary with changes in short-term interest rates.
- ¹⁵The value of debt securities within each Fund's portfolio may be affected by the ability of the issuer to make principal and interest payments.
- ¹⁶The Fund is subject to counterparty risk, which is the risk that another party in a repurchase agreement may not fulfill its obligations under the agreement.
- ¹⁷Effective July 5, 2016, PNC Small Cap Fund is closed to new investors.
- ¹⁸Emerging Markets investments are subject to special risks because frontier markets are among the smallest, least mature, and least liquid of the emerging markets, investments in frontier markets generally are subject to a greater risk of loss than investments in developed markets or traditional emerging markets. The Fund's investments in securities that are or become illiquid may reduce the returns of the Fund because it may be unable to sell the illiquid securities at an advantageous time or price.
